

Hurricane Safety Guide

A hurricane can be a devastating experience for anyone. Knowing how to prepare for a storm in advance can help protect you and your family, reduce the damages to your property and alleviate personal hardships.

We recommend taking the time to review your current insurance policies with your broker. Additionally, we have tapped our collective experience to assemble a list of steps you should take to not only prepare for a hurricane but what to do during and after a storm hits.

Before a Storm is on the Horizon

- Become familiar with your community's disaster preparedness plan and evacuation routes.
- Make your own plan for what you and your family will do in the event of a storm.
- Have a contractor and/or roofer evaluate your house for areas that could be damaged during a storm and proactively make repairs or strengthen any areas of weakness.
- Purchase a backup generator.
- Trim trees and large shrubs.
- If you own a watercraft, plan for how you will protect the vessel (i.e. tie, anchor, dry dock, storage).
- Check your disaster supplies and replace or restock as needed. Things you should include are: drinking water, iodine tablets, canned foods, manual can opener, child care supplies, flashlights and batteries, pet supplies, first aid kit, and all hygiene supplies.
- Keep an up-to-date inventory of all jewelry and collectibles.
- Discuss your current hurricane insurance coverage with your account executive and find out about any applicable hurricane protection programs you may be eligible to enroll in through your insurance carrier.

When a Storm is on its Way After the Storm has Passed

- Fill your cars with gasoline and keep extra fuel available for backup electrical generators.

- Be sure to keep your credit cards and some cash available.
- Locate flashlights and extra batteries.
- Bring in anything that can be picked up by the wind (i.e. lawn furniture, potted plants, etc.)and help your neighbors do the same to avoid any of their items hitting your home.
- Charge your cell phones.
- Close your windows, doors, and hurricane shutters. If you do not have hurricane shutters, close and board up all windows and doors with plywood.
- Place valuables in waterproof containers and move fine art as needed. If you cannot move these items into storage, place them in waterproof containers in an interior closet.
- Roll up area rugs and elevate if possible.
- Make sure you have copies of your important documents and prescriptions and keep them in a waterproof container.
- Turn your refrigerator and freezer to the coldest setting and keep them closed as long as possible.
- Have a camera/smartphone available to take photos of any damage.
- Turn off your electricity at the main switch and shut off gas at the appliance.
- Unplug all small appliances.

After the Storm has Passed

- If possible, stay tuned in, to local announcements or the NOAA for updates on the storm area, shelters, medical assistance and aid, etc.
- Drive only if necessary to avoid flooded roads, loose power lines and washed out bridges.
- Inspect your home for damages. Take pictures of damage, both of the building and its contents in case a claim needs to be reported.
- Check the ceiling and floor for signs of sagging. Water may be trapped in the ceiling or floors which may be unsafe to walk on.
- Turn the main electrical power and water systems off until you or a professional can ensure that they are safe.
- Smell for gas. If you smell natural gas or propane, leave your home immediately and contact your local fire department.
- Contact our team and we will provide you with resources and information regarding restorations, claims, and the next steps for you and your family.
